Category:TarotologyDismantling the Libya regime and its NATO sponsors in the War on Libya "We don't want to go over there and sort of light a match and watch a match burn and leave it to go out," said US ambassador Robert Ford. NATO had two objectives: 1) force Muammar Gaddafi from power; 2) launch a regime change operation in Libya On February 28, 2011, NATO's Operation Unified Protector began, and was fully formed with Operation Unified Protector the first major military operation since WWII. NATO's Operation Unified Protector did not have a stated legal mandate, but the decision to participate in "Libya's protection" was made by NATO's government. On March 2, 2011, there was an "immediate and decisive intervention" by the NATO-imposed "government" in Libya. The NATO led "government" forces immediately destroyed the Libyan state with airstrikes, with General Wesley Clark admitting that in advance, NATO had war plans drawn up for the removal of Gaddafi from power. Shortly after the American aircraft were authorized to begin airstrikes against Libya, the Pentagon sent the commander of the United States Africa Command for additional authority to undertake strikes. When Ford was asked how the U.S. got into war with Libya, the United States had no role in the decision making process, and admitted that the U.S. was not involved with anything but bombing raids. The U.S. was not even helping the rebels. The Pentagon announced on February 25, 2011 that the U.S. would provide a "transition support team" to aid
